USFIA Currency Fund

According to Assembly Bill No. 129 that was passed in California on June 28, 2014, the circulation of e-currency, rewards points, vouchers, coupons, and GemCoin was legalized in California.

GemCoin, issued by the USFIA Currency Fund, has its own internal value. Its value is supported by the global gemstone mines of AFG, the company that controls the USFIA Currency Fund. It was first issued to the public on September 1, 2014, and it has potential for broad circulation.

GemCoin is mainly issued and circulated in the gem mining industry and the financial industry, and it circulates in large quantities. GemCoins are issued by the fund as part of gemstone sales, and there is also a bonus of GemCoins provided according to a certain ratio. (For example, when investing USD 10,000, gems in the amount of USD 10,000 are received as well as an added bonus of USD 5,000 in GemCoin.)

The USFIA Currency Fund is a currency fund that is subsidiary to AFG, and its value is backed by AFG.

AFG was founded in 2002 and is registered in the State of Delaware, with its headquarters located in Los Angeles. It is a large-sized international corporation. The investment projects that AFG is involved in cover financing, real estate funds (REIT), real estate, mining (gemstones), auctions, telecommunications, biotechnology, and aviation equipment and supplies. Its businesses are spread across North and South America, Asia, and Europe.

The global assets of AFG amount to more than USD 50 billion, with more than two million users around the world, and with plans to establish 3,000 gemstone chain stores. All of this builds up into an unrivaled foundation for GemCoin and its relative stability in terms of market value.

The issue price of GemCoin was USD 0.05 as of September 1.

The value of BitCoin started out at USD 0.06 when it was launched in 2009, and it has reached as high as USD 979.45, which is an appreciation in value of 16,257 times.

About GemCoin

Virtual currency refers to currency that does exist in the real world. When there is a connection made between the virtual and real economies, the virtual currency is imbued with actual value, and it can be traded and used to purchase goods and services. With the implementation of Assembly Bill No. 129, virtual currency has become a legal method of payment.

Virtual currency is mainly divided into the following categories:

1. Internet-based digital currency, represented by BitCoin.
2. Commercial currency, such as rewards points, vouchers, and gift cards issued by merchants.

These two types of currency both have their inherent limitations. Digital currency has no value of its own because it originates as computer code. Digital currency can only be circulated when the buyer and seller both accept it as a form of payment. In addition, its security has always been a subject of widespread skepticism. The commercial currency issued by merchants has a certain inherent value, and its redemption value is usually guaranteed by the merchant. However, it can only be used for the products and services designated by the merchant. Both digital currency and commercial currency can only be broadly circulated when there are vast numbers of users.

GemCoin issued by the USFIA Currency Fund is a financially innovative next-generation virtual currency that is based on both digital currency and commercial currency but that solves the inherent inadequacies of traditional virtual currency, giving it the potential for unprecedented levels of value appreciation.

The value of BitCoin started out at USD 0.06 when it was launched in 2009, and it has reached as high as USD 979.45, which is an appreciation in value of 16,257 times. However, it does not have any inherent value on its own. GemCoin, issued by USFIA Currency Fund and backed by gemstone value, will undoubtedly lead a new wave of virtual currency circulation. If it can be said that BitCoin is the gold of the virtual currency world, then GemCoin is the jewel!
